When Should I Request an Administrative Hearing?

You may request a hearing when you experience one or more of the following:

You have been denied Medicaid assistance or services.

Medicaid services you are currently receiving have been reduced, suspended, or terminated.

An action on your Medicaid case has been unreasonably delayed.

You feel the Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) or its contractor has taken an action in error.

You believe a nursing care facility has incorrectly determined that you must be transferred or discharged.

You believe the State has made an incorrect decision concerning an admission or annual resident review requirements.

How long do I have to request a hearing?

You have ninety (90) days to request a hearing after you have been notified in writing of the action the DHHS or its contractor has taken or is intending to take. All denials, reductions, terminations or suspensions of Medicaid services must be provided to you in writing. This document is called a notice. If Medicaid services have been denied, terminated, reduced or suspended and this denial, termination, reduction or suspension has not been given to you in writing, you may still request a hearing.

How do I ask for a hearing?

A hearing request form should be mailed to you with the notice of denial, service reduction, termination or suspension. Although you are not required to use a form to request a hearing, all hearing requests must be in writing and signed by you or your legal guardian.

Your request should identify the action or lack of action with which you disagree and the type of service that is involved.

If you are receiving assistance or a service and it is to be reduced, suspended or terminated, you should be mailed a notice telling you the "effective date" of the reduction, suspension or termination

If you file a hearing request in writing before the effective date of the action, you will continue to receive the benefits until the hearing is held and a decision is made.

How will I be notified of the hearing date and location?

A notice of the date, time and location of the hearing will be mailed to you.

This notice will also give you instructions to follow if it is impossible for you to attend the hearing on the date it is scheduled. Most hearings will be held over the telephone. The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) remains in his/her office and connects all parties by phone.
